New social environments for evolving lifestyles

A number of simple elements contribute to shape the heart of the project: a light metal canopy sheltering the open space from the sun and the rain, formally connecting the new buildings and the existing ones and creating a sense of protection for the open air social life. The rich planted landscape, the overspill of the new public functions on the common space and the backdrop of the new building fronts give scale and articulation to this social environment, alive at all hours and seasons.
