

DCB III

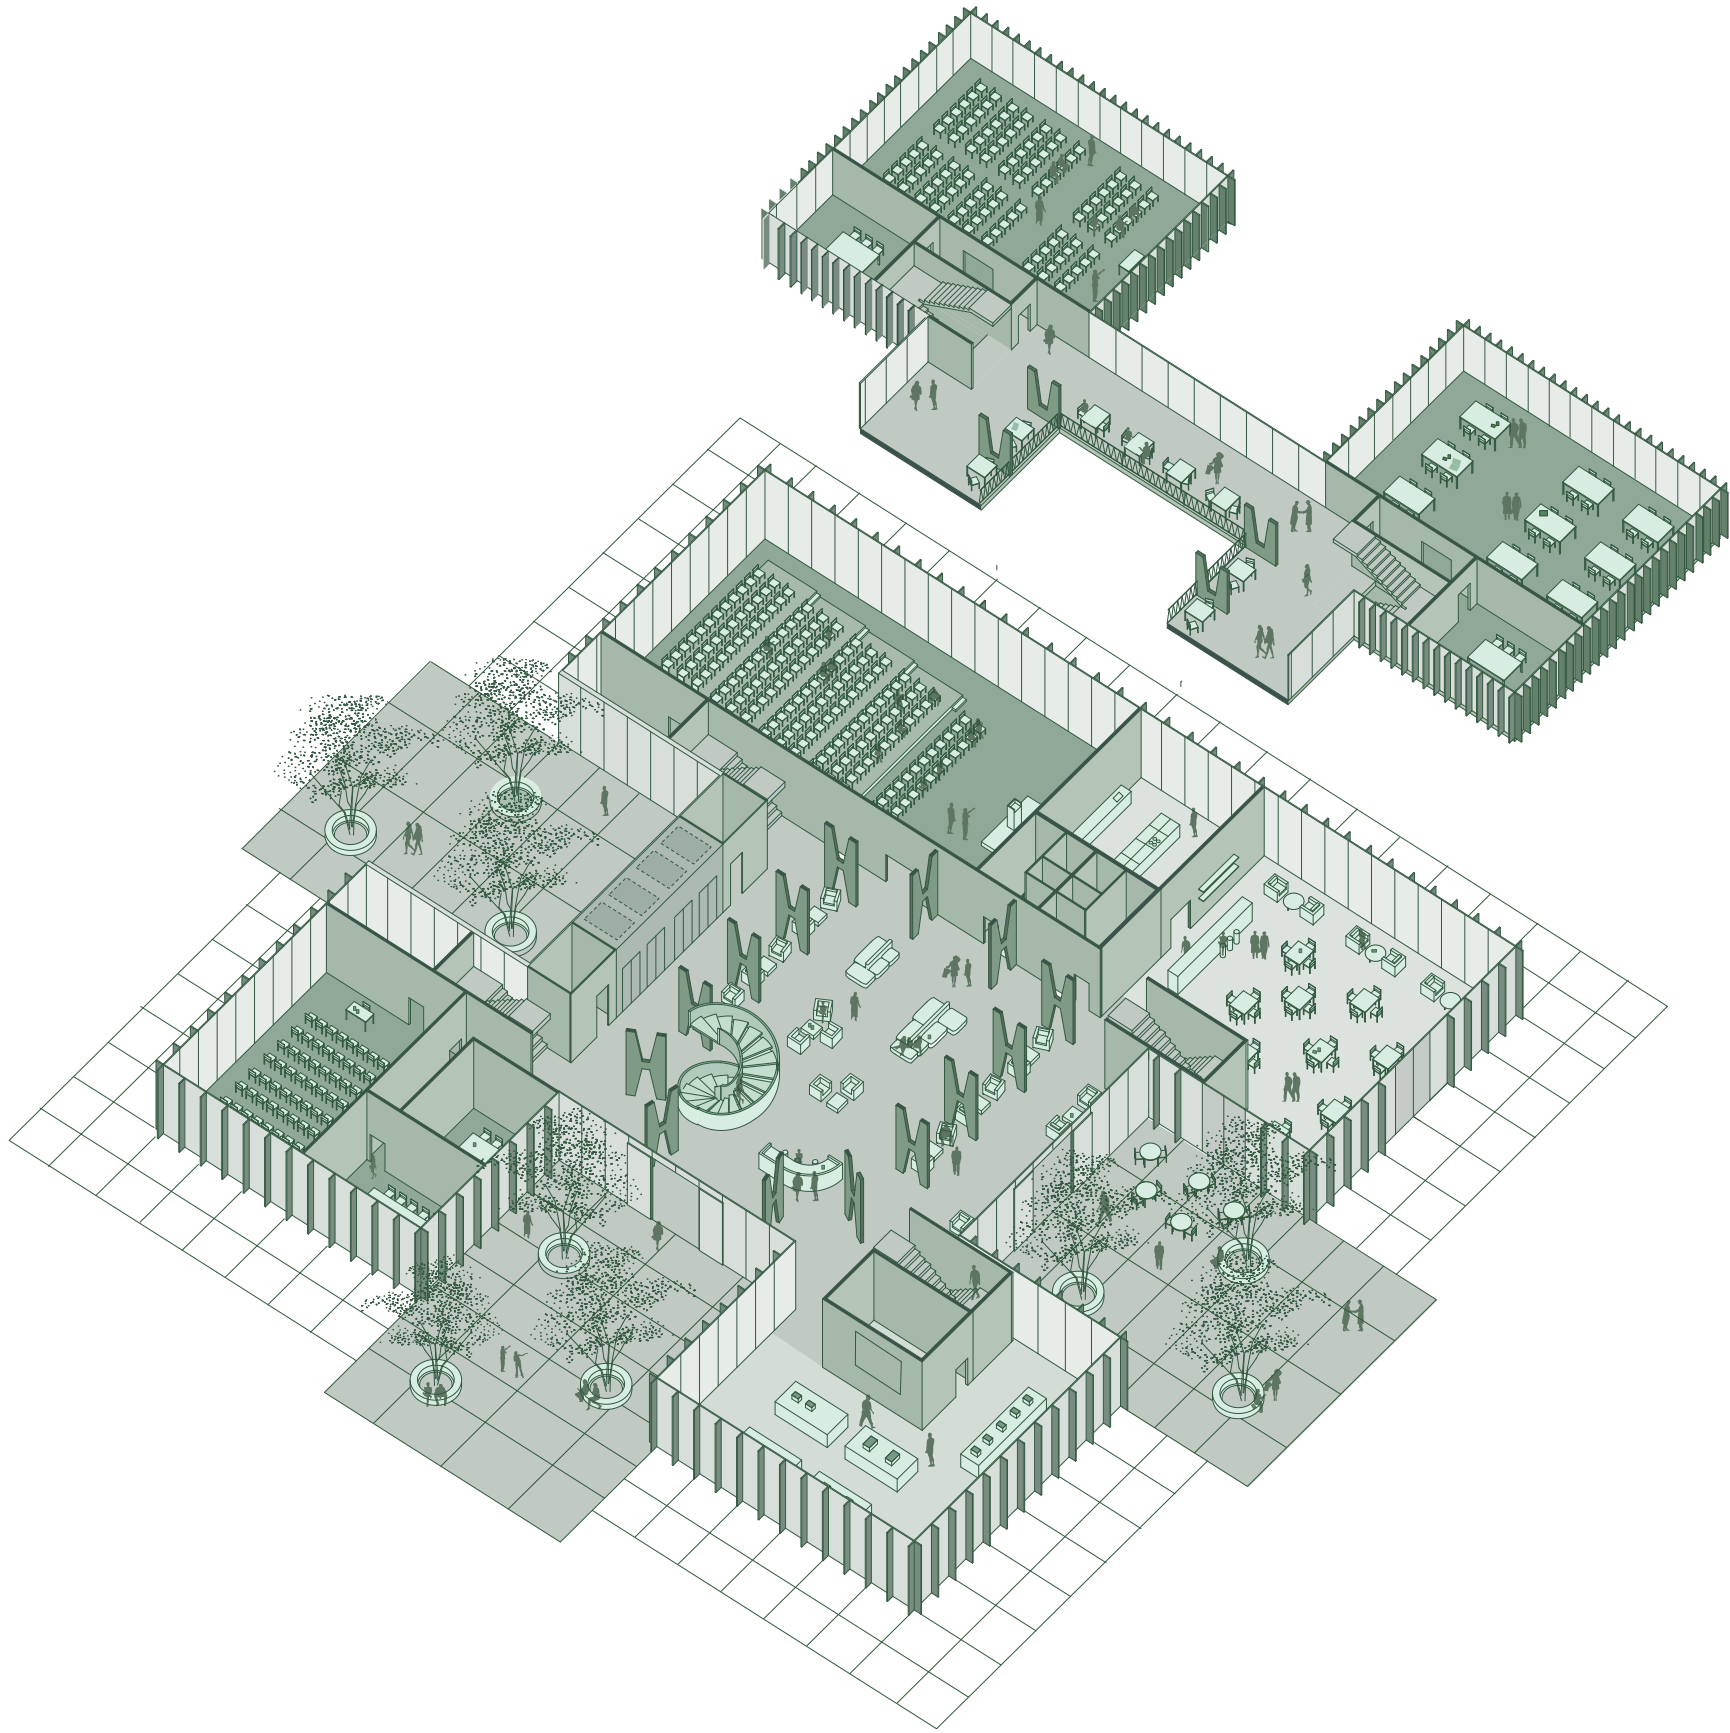

The DCB3 building is thought of as a vertical and horizontal stratification of elements and typologies.

The forum:
In a manner of a forum, programs are served and articulated around a center. It includes large spaces that can accommodate a wider audience: restaurant, conference room and exhibition venue. The fully glazed facade offers a clear view on the other buildings of the campus and the shape of the forum marks the connection with them. The forum invites users to meet and exchange. Finally, it allows to see the gardens where the forum opens.

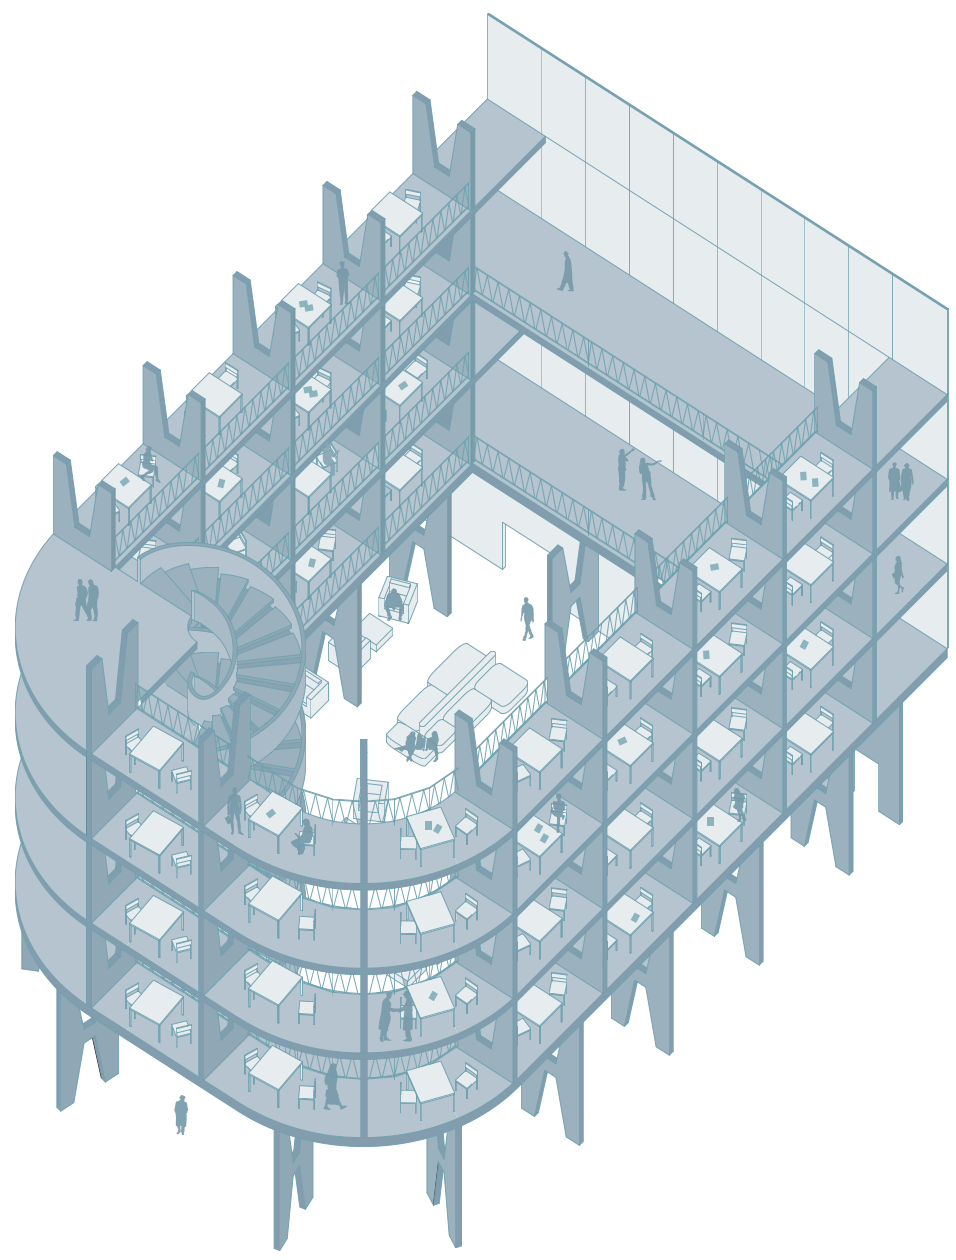

The theater :
In the forum center, a wooden structure recreates a space reminiscent of the interiors of theaters. From the ground floor to the fourth level, the theater animates the forum, brings life and contributes to the creation of the center. The theater benefits from the views offered by the large windows. If from the ground floor, we wander through the wooden structure, from upstairs, it is transformed into a gallery with small alcoves. In the evening, the space comes to life like an Italian theater.

The pavilions:
The offices take place into four pavilions. From the first to the fourth floor, there is a circle walk around the theater to enter the office space. Each office floors can be independent or grouped on the same level, but also between floors. This location offers a lot of configurations and great flexibility in office management space offered for rental. The form creates a context that multiplies views : office trays all have a triple orientation.

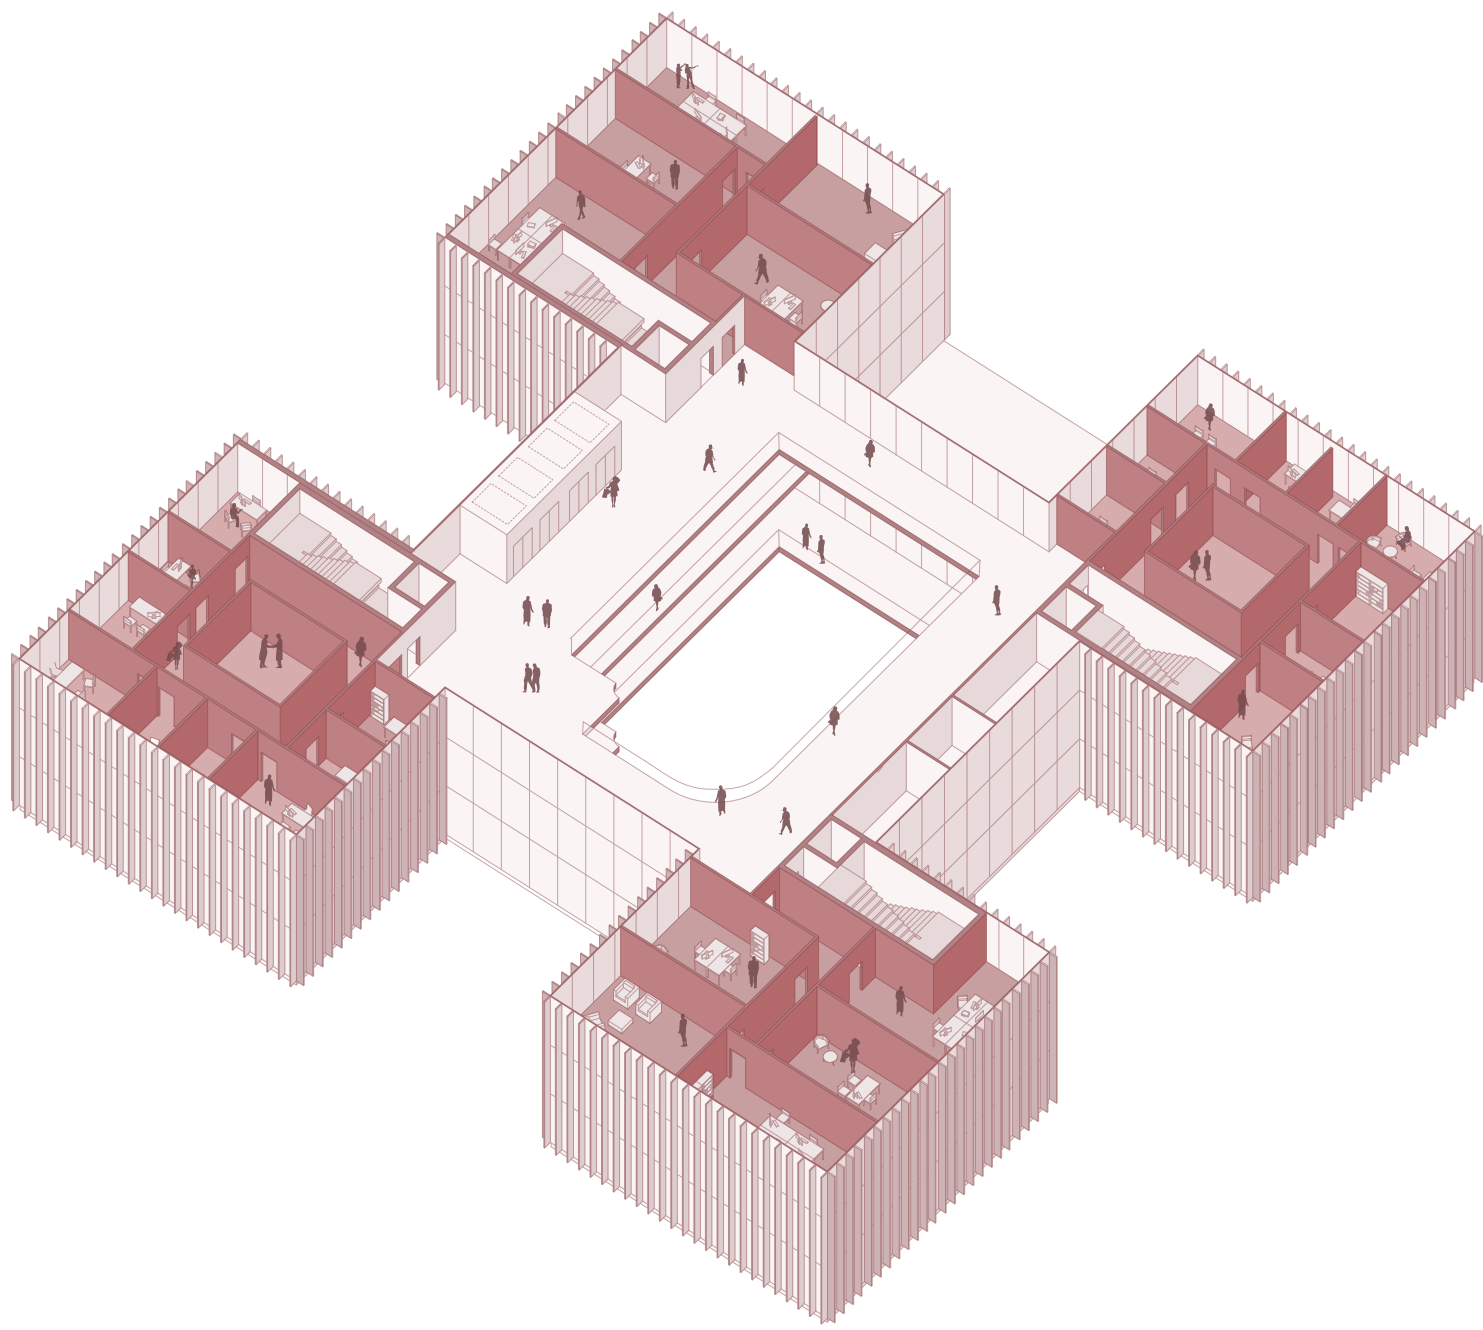

The top:
Beyond 20 meters high, the project establishes a second logic. The building opens to the great Ljubljana landscape. The form of a cross take full advantage of views and direct natural light. Levels 6 to 10 could be divided into 4 trays. The spaces allow multiple interior fittings. Thanks to this change of shape, the offices of the sixth level open on four terraces, reminding the gardens on the groundfloor and the mountains.
